Automatic Stoker Installed at Electric Power Plant

The new automatic stoker purchased by the town some time ago has been installed at the electric light plant, and by all appearances is giving satisfaction so far as well as cutting down the cost of fuel to operate the plant.

It has cost the town more to install the machine than was expected because it was found that when the work was being done that a considerable amount of the brick-work that could not be seen crumbled away when the machine was being put in.

Several people are now wanting the town to supply the power all night for different purposes, such as sickness, the convenience of having lights when the early morning train comes in and for other purposes. It should not be a hard matter for the Council to arrange this, they claim, as the fires have to be banked up between 12.30 and 4.30 a. m., taking a considerable amount of coal and the few hours between would only use up a little more, which would not amount to much in the cost of operating the plant and give more service while it is thought the extra revenue derived would pay for the extra cost of fuel. The manual operation of the plant, they claim, could easily be arranged with the co-operation of the staff at the plant.

There is no doubt that it would be a great convenience to have the power on for three or four winter months anyway.

O. Levagood Killed in Mine Accident

A sad accident occurred at Mullin, Idaho on Monday, November 24th, when Wesley Oscar Levagood, son of Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Levagood, of Westcott, was killed in a mine at that place.

He was a motorman in the mine and was working on the 2000 ft. level. He was driving his mine motor car as usual on the morning he was killed when by some means his coat caught on a bulkhead, pulling him off and forcing him between the bulkhead and the cars. His chest was badly crushed and the left lung perforated. Mr. Levagood was rushed to the hospital at Wallace, Idaho, but died of his injuries the next day. According to his helpers the motor was not going very fast at the time of the accident.

The body was shipped to Didsbury in care of a friend, Mr. H. L. Smith, and the funeral was held at the Evangelical church on Monday, December 1st, a large number of friends and relatives being present, interment being made in the Didsbury cemetery.

Mr. Levagood was a little over 43 years of age and leaves to mourn his loss his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Levagood, of Westcott; one daughter, Thelma A. Levagood; three brothers, Ira and Harry, of Didsbury, and Roy, of Dove Creek, Colorado.

The town of Didsbury is to have the privilege of hearing the noted Miss Mary A. Butterfield, returned missionary and Red Cross nurse, from Palestine, give some of her war time missionary experiences. Are The Voters Indifferent?

Every Presidential campaign in the United States is remarkable in one or more ways, but probably the most remarkable feature of the recent campaign was the strenuous effort made to induce men and women qualified to vote to go to the polls and exercise their franchise. When people are denied the franchise there is continual agitation to obtain it, and not infrequently in the history of this old world has the insistent demand of people to enjoy the rights of self-government resulted in revolution. But once that right has been accorded them, what a large percentage of the people display neglect and indifference in the exercise of their franchise through which alone can they really govern themselves.

If the great mass of voters neglect to cast their ballots, democracy is in danger because they are leaving the door wide open to the entry of interested parties and cliques and interests with personal axes to grind rather than a patriotic desire to advance the welfare of the country as a whole. All students and lovers of democracy realize the danger that exists, consequently in the recent Presidential election an unprecedented effort was made to arouse the voters from their apathy and get them to the polling booths.

In the Presidential election of 1896 when William Jennings Bryan made his famous campaign for "free silver," eighty per cent. of the qualified voters went to the polls. A quarter of a century later in 1912 with all the excitement of a three-cornered contest between Wilson, Taft and Roosevelt, only 62 per cent. of the voters actually voted, and every election between these dates revealed a steady decline.

During the weeks preceding this year's election every known device was employed by the National Civic Federation in a great "get out the vote" campaign to remedy this state of affairs and arouse the voters to a sense of their responsibility. The radio, the movies, the newspaper and magazine press, ringing bells, blowing sirens, tooting whistles, the pasting of stickers on automobiles and milk bottles, the offering of a magnificent trophy to the state recording the largest proportional increase in votes cast, and advertising on a nation-wide scale were called into action. With what result? According to the latest figures available, less than one-half the people entitled to vote took the trouble to do so.

Much the same thing is recorded in Canada, and even in Great Britain, where the proportion is higher, rarely more than 70 per cent. of the vote is polled.

What is the reason? Are the people really apathetic, uninterested and indifferent as to what principles and policies shall be effective in the legislation and administration of their public affairs, or is there something radically wrong with the electoral systems in vogue? Even admitting a considerable degree of apathy and neglect on the part of the individual voter, it cannot alone be accountable for the fact that, as a rule, only three out of every five persons cast their ballots.

Rather is the main trouble not in the present system of balloting? For example, what inducement is there for a Republican voter to go to the polls in the states of the solid Democratic South? He may vote as a matter of sentiment or out of principle, but he knows that it will have no effect on the result. He is in a hopeless minority and knows it, and he further knows that under the existing system he is likewise helpless. Then, why take the trouble to vote? And a Democrat find himself in exactly the same position in some of the out-and-out Republican States of the north.

In the last Canadian general elections, the Conservative voters in the Province of Quebec might just as well have refrained from voting for all the effect the ballots cast by them had on the representation of that Province in the House of Commons. In Nova Scotia, 136,999 Conservative, Progressive and Labor voters, 47 per cent. of the total, were as effectually disfranchised as if their names had been struck off the voters' lists in advance of polling. In Alberta and Saskatchewan, supporters of Liberal and Conservative candidates and policies found themselves without representation. Is it any wonder many voters say: "What's the use?" and go on with their own private business affairs.

The truth is, and the masses of the people are coming to realize the fact even if the politicians do not, that while we now enjoy universal suffrage, the votes of individuals have not equal value. The votes of a bare majority are 100 per cent. effective, but let a group, no matter how numerous, be in a minority of one, and they are deprived of all representation. What incentive is there in such a condition to a man or woman to drive many miles to cast what they well know in advance will be an ineffective ballot?

The popular cry of a generation ago, "One man, one vote," requires replacement by a newer slogan, "One vote, one value." Only so can what now appears to be sheer apathy and neglect on the part of the voters be overcome. Give them some reasonable assurance that their votes will be a real factor in determining the result of an election, and much of the present indifference will disappear.

VICTIMS OF ANAEMIA

Need New, Rich Blood to Restore Health and Strength

It is an unfortunate fact that nine women out of every ten are victims of bloodlessness in one form or another. The girl in her teens, the wife and mother, the matron of middle age—all know its miseries. To be anemic means that you are breathless after slight exertion. You feel worn out and depressed. You turn against food and often cannot digest what you do eat. Sleep does not refresh you, and when you get up you feel exhausted and unfit for the day's duties. If neglected, anaemia may lead to consumption.

You should act promptly. Make good the fault in your blood by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the most reliable blood enricher ever discovered. These pills purify bad blood, strengthen weak blood, and they make good blood, and as the condition of your blood improves you will regain proper strength, and enjoy life fully as every girl and woman should do. The case of Mrs. Mary Trainor, Perth, Ont., shows the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of this kind. She says: "I had not been feeling well for some time and had been gradually growing weaker. I found it very hard to do my housework; had severe headaches and was very pale. I took doctor's medicine for some time, but they did me no good. I was growing weaker and used to faint and take dizzy spells. In this condition I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after a time found they were helping me. I continued their use until I found the troubles that afflicted me had gone and I am once more enjoying good health and strength."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Dirigible Mail Service

Says Zeppelins Will Carry Letters Across Atlantic At 25c Each

There will soon be a weekly mail service by Zeppelin between the United States and Europe, according to Dr. Hugo Eckner, director of the Zeppelin Company, who had charge of the ZR-3's trans-Atlantic flight.

The Zeppelin-Goodyear combination does not intend to establish a passenger service for the present, he indicated, but it believes one Zeppelin each way weekly carrying a half million letters at 25 cents per letter would be a business success.

Queen Alexandra has celebrated her eightieth birthday. King George, Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and the Queen and Crown Prince of Norway were among those who joined in the observance. Though somewhat feeble, Queen Alexandra retains comparatively good health and is in the habit of driving out in her motor car almost daily, even braving inclement weather. There was a family dinner in honor of her birthday, but none of the brilliant festivities which formerly marked this anniversary.

Large numbers of gifts and messages of congratulation were received.

Frenchman Breaks Records

Attained Speed of 192 Miles an Hour in Seaplane

The airman, Paunier, using a new amphibious plane equipped with 350 horsepower motor, broke the speed record for seaplanes for the distances of both 100 and 200 kilometers while carrying a load of 500 kilograms. Paunier's average speed for the shorter distance was slightly over 192 miles an hour and for the longer distance slightly under that figure.

The performance was the more remarkable in that the test was made over a ten kilometer course and the machine was brand new, never having been broken in.

Chocolate Covered Figs

Dainty Confection Which Will Please the Children

This toothsome and wholesome Christmas time confection comes from New Orleans, and is especially to be recommended for children, because it satisfies the craving for sweets with a food that is digestible, nutritious and has a tonic effect on the system.

The figs should first be steamed until they are very tender. This may be done conveniently in an enameled ware steamer with a removable rack. When the figs have cooled remove the soft centres and chop this portion fine with a few nuts and candied fruits. Fill the figs with this mixture and dip them in unsweetened chocolate which has been melted in an enameled ware double boiler. The chocolate coating will keep the figs soft and moist for a considerable time.

In the Clydesdale horses, Saskatchewan entries took all the stallion championships, scoring a clean sweep "Wee Donald," a spirited animal, owned by C. A. Members of this tribe, like those of other tribes in that almost unknown Arctic region, obtain wives by attacking their neighbors and carrying off their young women. Ford asked that his railroad, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironport, be allowed to issue $150,000 first mortgage bonds, to be sold to Henry Ford, his wife and their son, Edsel Ford. Ford wants to use the money to buy land for his road.

Long Distance Radio Record

Port Arthur, Ont.—Wm. Sutton, radio inspector, Port Arthur, created a long distance record for reception when he heard F. D. Bell, of Waltham, New Zealand, transmitting in code to 2 C.M. in Australia. Mr. Sutton was able to hear the signals clearly.

U.S. MAY APPLY THE QUOTA LAW TO CANADIANS

Washington.—The application of the present United States immigration policy and proposed alterations in that policy, constitute a large part of the material on which the Labor department's annual report, as made public by Secretary Davis, is based.

Three salient changes in immigration practice are suggested by Mr. Davis. The first would apply to citizens of Canada, Mexico and other North American countries outside the United States, under the quota restrictions now governing the entrance of aliens from other lands. The second would allow temporary increase in the admission of aliens in times of established and particularized labor shortage in the United States, and permit administrative restrictions of all immigration under existing legal limits in times of unemployment. The third major proposal would require the registration and enrollment of all aliens admitted to the country.

The present large inflow of immigrants from Canada and Mexico, unrestricted by the law so far as native citizens of those countries are concerned, is putting a premium, says Mr. Davis, on "bootlegging of aliens." Europeans in large numbers gaining entrance to those countries, he asserts, are being smuggled unlawfully to the United States, and he believes that placing them under the quota provisions of the law would allow effective steps to be taken to shut out the invaders.

Advocate Peerage

For Asquith

Would Be Fitting Recognition Of His Services to Britain

London.—A number of influential persons, recognizing the general regret over former premier Asquith's temporary elimination from public life through his defeat in the last election, have taken the occasion of his holiday in Egypt to agitate again that he be lifted above all political bickerings by the gift of a peerage in the King's New Year's honors list.

There is no doubt that this would be a popular move, for the Liberal leader is acclaimed among all classes as one of the greatest statesmen of British history and there is a general feeling that the gift of a peerage would be only a fair reward for his services to the country, extending over nearly half a century.

Rajah May Be Witness

Mystery Concerning "Mr. A." Is Lifted By Indian Office in London

Paris.—The mysterious "Mr. A." who was connected with the recent Robinson blackmailing case, will be called as a witness in the British courts should James Charles Arthur, former British army officer, who was the aide-de camp to "Mr. A." and who is under arrest in Paris, be unsuccessful in his attempt to prevent extradition to London. The mystery concerning "Mr. A." was lifted by the Indian Office in London, when it was announced that he is Rajah Sir Hari Singh, a nephew of the Maharajah of Jammu and Kashmir. Previously the potentate's name had been held secret for "reasons of state."

Becoming Burden To Ontario

Mental Defectives From Europe Filling Provincial Institutions

Toronto.—Mental defectives from Southern and Eastern Europe are becoming a burden on Ontario expenditure, according to the report for the last year of the Ontario hospitals for the insane, feeble minded and epileptics. One hundred and ten persons from these districts have entered the provincial institutions during the year under review.

W.C.T.U. Parlor Meeting

A parlor meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smiley by the Westcott W. C. T. U. on Friday, December 5. The meeting was opened by Rev. W. B. Dengis with a prayer and short address and the reading of the 37th psalm, after which the report of the Edmonton convention was given by Mrs. A. B. Frasch. A very appropriate recitation was given by the President, Mrs. Ray, a hymn was sung by Mrs. C. F. Rennie all present joining in the chorus and a piano selection was rendered by Doris Murphy after which the meeting was adjourned. A very delightful lunch consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee was then served.

Beware of Grumblers

English newspapers, a portion of whose space has been devoted to reproduction of letters written home from Canada, concerning the welfare of those who have migrated to Canada may be doing Canada unwittingly, a great favor.

Publication of such items may prevent a class for which Canada has no welcome from transferring their presence to the Dominion.

Ridicule has been directed at the fact that flour bags have been converted into trousers. This was written from Revelstoke and pur ported to have general reference to the farmers of Alberta. Ever though true, in isolated instances this should be a much better medium of retaining pride and self respect than accepting the home land charity under the "dole" system. Even in the pursuit of happiness some are satisfied to sit down and expect it to overtake them.

As the Canadian High Commissioner pointed out, it is this "whining" type that is heard the oftener while those who have succeeded rarely have time to write to the British press.

From a crippled, rheumatism-wrecked hunchback we once heard a remarkable lesson read to one of these grumblers.

The latter was in a cobbler shop awaiting some repairs by the afflicted proprietor. While the aw was busy, so was the client's tongue—maintaining a continuous monologue of disparaging comparison between Calgary, which had moved to be the city, and his home in the British Isles.

His experience, to judge from his talk, had been the result of a malign combination of Fate and Providence, to say nothing of the trio of Graces to thwart him of the success he considered due him. His chief butt of rhetoric was "this lawless country."

Nothing ever done in Canada could please this all too-particular man.

Finally, the cobbler, unable to tolerate the tirade any further, twisted his head around, glared over his deformed back and with the query converted the monologue into dialogue and from that to immediate silence.

All he said was: "Why is it you don't go back?"

Persons with whom grumbling is a habit should be taught as was the man mentioned in the foregoing—just how ridiculous they are when subjected to sober consideration.—Canadian Finance.

Hunting With Guns as Accessories

By the time he has gathered all his equipment and impedimenta around him the average man preparing to enter the woods with the idea of game hunting begins to wonder, first of all how he is going to carry it all, and then just how much of it he really needs. Eventually he sets off with the bare necessities of the trip, minus most of the paraphernalia he intended to take, but one thing he will not leave behind—his camera. It may get in his way sometimes, but as a rule he finds it indispensable. Without it he knows that he will be unable, probably, to support his claims as to big moose shot or ferocious game encountered.

As a matter of fact quite a noticeable number of those entering the Canadian woods during the last few years have been known to carry guns rather than cameras as accessories. A great deal more skill and bush lore is required to enable one to secure a shot with a camera than with a rifle, the chase is even more exciting and the end, without entailing any slaughter, produces quite as much thrill. This will be readily acknowledged by the true sportsman.

Reproduced above are some of the closing season's most interesting shots. The doe was got within range after three days hunt out of Ste. Jovite, Quebec. She was not the largest animal seen, but she made the best shot. The moose which is seen leisurely sharpening its teeth was caught in the Kipawa district of Ontario, while the other faced the camera in the waters of the Tobique, Nova Scotia. The buck cleaving the Lake of the Woods shows what may be obtained in the way of "action" photographs.

Here and There

Agricultural products harvested in British Columbia during 1923 were nearly $4,000,000 in excess of the 1922 total, according to the annual report of the provincial department of agriculture. Total production for 1923 was $59,159,798.

The ninth winter carnival at Banff, Alta., will be held from February 2 to 14, 1925. The curling bonspiel in connection with the carnival will run concurrently from February 9 to 14. Revelstoke has fixed its carnival dates for February 3, 4 and 5, 1925.

Tourists to the number of 100,000 are estimated to have entered the Province of Nova Scotia during the past season. These people have left approximately $7,500,000 in the province, an increase of 25 per cent. over the previous year. The number of motor cars entering the province during the tourist season exceeded 11,000.

Canada Book Week was held from December 1 to 6 this year. Addresses, radio broadcasting and special displays in stores throughout the country drew attention to the objects of the week, which are to promote the reading of good books generally and to foster Canadian literature. The week was, as usual, a distinct success.

The foolhardy recklessness of certain motorists was recently strikingly illustrated at a public crossing on the Canadian Pacific Railway line at Blind River, Ontario, when a speeding auto approached the crossing so rapidly that the driver was unable to pull up, and ran his car into the side of a train which was passing at the time. Fortunately, no one was injured.

In recognition of its excellent exhibits at the 1924 exhibition at Toronto, the Canadian Pacific Railway has been awarded one of the medals specially struck off for presentation to the Dominion and Provincial governments, and to a limited number of other exhibits whose high class entries in the live stock and agricultural departments won them championship prizes.

The plans for the construction of an immense amusement centre at Victoria, B.C., to be called the Crystal Gardens, have just been announced by the Canadian Pacific Railway, which is responsible for the scheme. The gardens will include a salt water swimming pool 150 feet long, and a series of dance ing floors, with tea rooms and gymnasium. Great quantities of plants, vines and shrubs will be grown in the structure, which is on the lines of a vast conservatory, containing 36,000 square feet of glazed glass roof surface.

A considerable increase in the sheep population of Canada, which has declined since 1920 from 2,255,020 to 1,575,000, is expected as a result of the recent importation by Alberta ranchers of 400 Rambouillet rams. These animals are merines, with fine wool, bred in France from Spanish merino stock. Louis XVI obtained the first flock as a gift from the King of Spain. A harem of 20,000 western range ewes will be provided for the Alberta purchase. The enterprise is important, on account of the prevailing world shortage of wool.

Appointed Director Canadian Pacific

(Ross Huntington McMaster)

The recent election of Mr. Ross Huntington McMaster to be a director of the Canadian Pacific, filling the vacancy created on the board by the death of the late Lord Shaughnessy, is a recognition on the Company's part of his long-proved ability. Mr. McMaster is already vice-president and director of the Steel Company of Canada and director of the Northern Electric Company, as well as the Canadian Explosives Company. Born in Montreal in 1880, he has lived practically all his life in that city. He was educated at the Montreal High School and Collegiate Institute. His business career began with the Sherwin Williams Co., of which he became assistant to the vice-president and general manager in 1897, a post he held until 1903. In the latter year he was made assistant to the vice-president and general manager of the Montreal Rolling Mills Company. On the formation of the Steel Company of Canada he was appointed manager at Montreal.

Grain Cut Green Grades High

In years of exceptional weather conditions curious things happen to the grain crops, some of which are hard to account for. John Borjan, a farmer living near Vegreville, Alta., had an experience this year which is more than puzzling his neighbors. On August 19th he began cutting his wheat when it was as green as grass. His neighbors doubted his sanity, writes a correspondent of the colonization and development department, Canadian National Railways, expecting he would get nothing but chaff in the threshing. The grain, however, filled out splendidly in the stook and gave a yield of 42 bushels per acre of good No. 3 Northern grade. Mr. Borjan thinks there is much yet to be learned about the farming game.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our thanks to the kind neighbors and friends for help and the beautiful flowers sent by them. We also wish to thank the kind friends of Mullan, Idaho, who sent beautiful flowers and helped in any way at the death of our dear son Wesley O. Levagood.

She could not understand why the sergeant did not draw and declare himself. As the enemy already had fired, he was no longer under restraint of that Quixotic slogan.

Bonnemort too, looked puzzled, but evidently took heart from his foe's restraint, for he advanced threateningly. Fearing that Seymour would be no match in a rough-and-tumble, Moira tried to press the miner's gun upon him, but the sergeant waved her back. "Hold off the Swashes," he demanded. "This brute has a beating coming to him."

Bonnemort advanced with a chortle of joy, delighted that luck favored him with the respite of physical combat. So many things could happen in a battle of fists. The man-to-man struggle was on.

After his initial rush, which the sergeant cleverly side-stepped, the breed's main idea seemed to be to throw his powerful arms about his opponent. Except for occasional swings, which would have knocked Seymour out had they found their mark, his efforts were directed to this end.

The sergeant had his Armistice detail to thank for his ability to evade. The Eskimo of the Arctic foreshore is above average height, large muscled and trained by occasional necessity to battle with Polar bears. When boxing matches were put on at the detachment, in lieu of other diversion, Seymour had acted as instructor. His greatest difficulty had been to break his pupils of "hugging" and to teach them that a punch was more effective than a clinch any day or where. As a result, he was not only trained to the minute, but highly practiced in slipping out of clinches.

From the first, Bonnemort fought like an Eskimo, trying again and again for a crushing embrace. With each vain effort, Seymour exacted punishment with jabs and cuts to the face. Never was he caught by the other's powerful arms.

For the alleged half-breed, the contest was soon sanguinary. His eyes and lips suffered and his nose became grotesque. On the other hand, Seymour was practically unmarked except for a lump on his forehead and a splotch on his cheek where Bonnemort's fist had touched him.

Klutchmen and braves had come from all parts of the diggings and stood in an irregular circle, staring in open-eyed wonder at the battle. Moira was having an easy task keeping them back, although she still held the gun ready. No partisan spirit developed. If anything, their grunts at clinches evaded and blows sent home favored the strange, more compact fighter. The sergeant was unknown to them, but the fact that the mission girl sponsored him with gun point was enough for them.

Bonnemort's wind was first to fail him and for an untimed round or two,

MRS. A. A. FOULGER

This Nurse Sends a Message

Brantford, Ont.—"During twenty-one years of experience at nursing, I not only took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription myself to keep up my health and strength, but I have also recommended it to many a patient, especially to prospective mothers, and think it is by far the best tonic and nerve tonic a woman can take, and for that reason I give it my highest endorsement."—Mrs. A. A. Foulger, 41 Sheridan Street.

Health is most important to every woman. You cannot afford to neglect it when your neighborhood druggist can supply you with Favorite Prescription, in tablets or liquid. This Prescription is made in Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont. Send 10 cents there if you wish a trial package.

W. N. U. 1554

Seymour played for him with hard punches to the body at every opportunity. It became clear that the spoiler's bulk was more "beef" than muscle. He was becoming a spectacle. His rushes lost their force; his swings grew hopelessly wild; his guard, never effective, broke down entirely.

"Punishment enough for manhandling you?" Seymour asked Moira, as the whirligig of battle brought him facing her.

"Yes—yes, he's paid!" she cried. The sergeant waded in then, regardless of the embrace he no longer feared. He beat Bonnemort to his knees. No coup de grace was necessary, as the overgrown miner was blubbering for mercy. The Swash gallery was beginning to grumble that none was delivered when they saw the victor produce a pair of handcuffs and snap them on the defeated one's wrists. Bonnemort seemed too dazed to notice the official trend in the situation, until—

"I arrest you, Harry Karmack, in the name of the King for the murder of Oliver O'Malley, at Armistice, Northwest Territories."

Stunned by the surprise of his capture, turned white by the shock of the unexpected charge, the former factor stared about him wildly.

As for Moira O'Malley, the double surprise was almost too much. Fright had prevented her recognition of the familiar features of her Northern suitor now that his hair was turned to red; and all through the hunt, no hint had come to her from the close-lipped sleuth of the open places that the man he had sworn to "get" had raised his hand against her brother.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Boot and Booty

"You'd best behave, Karmack," Seymour accented the name of surprise that the girl might become convinced that their hunt was really done. "Your dyed pate don't fool me and I'm no longer bound by our slogan of 'never fire first.' You took a couple of first shots up in the Arctic, remember, and have just tried another here. One false move and you get yours."

Karmack stood very still. "What do you mean by that murder talk, Seymour?" he asked after a moment in which, evidently, he realized the folly of further denial of identity. "I may have squeezed a little from the grasping old Arctic to give me a start in British Columbia, but I swear I had nothing to do with the strangling of young O'Malley."

Moira still seemed puzzled. "I thought—Didn't the jury say that Ayie, the Eskimo—" She could not finish for emotion.

"It takes two men to use the Ugiuk-line effectively," Seymour explained to the girl. "I know, for I've had one around my own neck and barely broke out of the clutch. This fiend hired Ayie to help him put your brother away—hired him with promise of a trip Outside to be tried for murder. Can you imagine? Now it will be ex-Factor Karmack who takes the trip—Inside."

Karmack moved restlessly, with the result of tightening the sergeant's grip. "But man, what motive could I possibly have had?" he begged nervously. "What motive?"

"From some outside source you learned that O'Malley had been sent to Armistice to investigate you and you knew that, despite your best efforts, he had succeeded in getting the goods. What you didn't know was that already he had sent out his report. I've been almost sure of your guilt ever since I learned that those black and silver fox pelts came from your old company's store room, two of the lot you held out on your employers."

Seymour turned to Moira. "Would you mind, dear, telling those Swashes to get back to work? Please convince them who I am and that I've taken charge in the king's name. That always goes strong with Indians. Make them understand that none of them is to leave the diggings."

Moira seemed to shake herself together from this blow he had delivered with all possible mercy. "I don't exactly understand, friend, but I thank you." She stepped into the circle of wondering natives and repeated his orders in Chinook.

"But he wears no uniform," objected one in English.

"He needs no scarlet tunic," the girl replied. "He is the law." This also she repeated in their jargon of gutturals.

On order, Karmack led the way to the tent. Seymour followed close behind with his arm supporting Moira, who seemed a bit unsteady.

There was a groan from the pretended half-breed when he saw that the lid of the treasure chest was thrown back.

"Since when did the Force take to breaking the locks of honest men?" he snarled.

Instead of answering, Seymour slammed down the lid and motioned his old enemy to seat himself upon the chest. Then he crossed the tent and picked up the tell-tale boot. Returning with it, he made a comparison. "Thought so," he murmured.

There was no need for further measuring and he tossed the gear under the table. Karmack had the biggest feet he had ever seen. By no possibility could one of them have been forced into the boot which he had just flung down.

Knowing nothing of the footprints Seymour had found near the scene of Caswell's killing, Moira O'Malley looked on at the comparison of boots in mystified silence. Karmack seemed to have a better grasp of the reason behind the test.

"I'm no murderer," he muttered,

"Wait until I get your latest partner, Kluger," said the sergeant.

Seymour seemed on the verge of enlightening Moira when she raised a hand of caution. "Listen," she whispered.

They heard hoof beats hammering into camp. Some one on horseback was coming at speed. The sergeant crossed to the tent front and peered out between the flaps.

"Guess we won't have to go for Kluger, after all," he said, still peering.

Karmack muttered an oath, his petulance directed against old lady Luck, who gets the credit for the best and blame for the worst that happens to illogical humans.

"Bonnie—Bonnemort! Where are you?" The deep-throated call came from outside.

"Where d'you suppose?" Seymour called back in a voice that he hoped would pass for the pretended half-breed's.

He turned to Moira, quietly directing her to crouch behind the treasure chest and keep her gun on the ex-factor.

"No more fighting with fists—please!" she begged.

"There's no woman in this man's case," he whispered, and motioned for silence.

Phil Brewster walked into the tent a moment later, and Seymour realized it was the first time he had seen him on foot. The affable freighter stepped with a limp.

"What you sitting there for, you big boob?" Brewster put his question to Karmack glancing about the tent.

"Thinking it over, perhaps." From a point back of Brewster, where he stood unnoticed, Seymour broke in before the pretender could speak for himself.

Brewster whirled, and with the move his gun appeared from handy concealment. But the sergeant had expected some such desperate act and was ready. His left hand caught the freighter's right at the wrist and swung it upward. Brewster's bullet let a look of blue sky through the canvas roof, while the muzzle of the Mountie's revolver prodded the ribs of his suspect. The freighter saw fit to obey a command to drop his weapon.

"Sorry I haven't more bracelets with me," Seymour said. "Moira, if you'll look under the clothes rack, where I found that boot just now, you'll find a length of rope."

"What's all this about, you high-binder?" Brewster demanded.

"You remind me—I neglected to introduce myself when we met yesterday and the day before. Karmack, there, might tell you that I call myself Seymour, sergeant of the Royal Mounted."

"But he's dead!" blurted out Brewster.

"Not that he knows of," Seymour assured him quickly; "but you have a very good reason for thinking so. Now, if you'll oblige by putting your hands behind you—"

When Brewster obeyed, perforce, the sergeant directed Moira to tie the wrists. After he had inspected the knots and recovered the fallen gun, he suggested that Brewster sit down on one of the cots until they were ready to start back to Gold. The freighter, in doing so, swung his right leg over his left knee. From his seat on the opposite cot, Seymour saw on the exposed sole one of the peculiar leather-saving metal plates in which he was so interested—the one that had made its impression in the soil near the scene of the murder. Reaching under the table, he retrieved the spare boot he had thrown there and saw that they matched in every particular.

"Just to make everything according to Hoyle, Brewster," the sergeant said, "I now place you under arrest for the murder of Bart Caswell, alias Sergeant Seymour."

Brewster seemed stunned at the charge. His eyes, as if by instinct, avoided Seymour's steady gaze. He looked at the scowling Karmack, starting slightly at his first glimpse

Mother's Apple Pie

A Recipe For Which is Claimed Considerable Merit

Almost any housekeeper can make apple pie but there are good and better sorts of apple pie. The pamphlet, entitled "Canadian-Grown Apples," issued by the fruit branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa, gives a recipe for Mother's Apple Pie, which undoubtedly has merit above some other kinds.

Fill the space between the crusts with Canadian-grown apples, sliced thin, rounding up the slices so as to make a very full pie. Add two or three tablespoons of water and bake in a slow oven. When cooked, with a sharp knife cut around the pie between the two crusts and carefully lift off the upper crust; add one-half cup of sugar, a few grains of salt, a tablespoon of butter and a little nutmeg. Mix thoroughly, and spread evenly over the fruit. Replace the upper crust, pressing it down to meet the apples, if necessary, and sift powdered sugar over the top. Serve, when slightly cooled, with cream and sugar.

Why should we give ourselves grudgingly, or of necessity, to the love of God? Why hesitate and tremble, and shrink we are not good enough to love Him, or to be loved by Him? Love does not hesitate. Love leaves all, and follows.

Wants Army Increased

Strength Reduced to Danger Point Says U.S. War Secretary

The United States army has been seriously handicapped by a programme of economy, and its strength has diminished to the danger point, according to the annual report of the secretary of war.

Secretary of War Weeks, in his report, declared that the pressure for necessary progress and improvement in the army has become even greater than the pressure for economy.

The secretary asked that the army air force be increased to "give us a peace force of 3,000 officers and 25,000 enlisted men."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 14

THE RAISING OF LAZARUS

Golden Text: I am the resurrection, and the life. John 11:25.
Lesson: John 11:1-44.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 91:1-7.

The Text Explained and Illumined

News of the sickness of Lazarus reaches Jesus, verses 1-6. "He was thou lovest is sick," was the message which Martha and Mary, the sisters of Lazarus, sent from Bethany to Jesus in Perea. The sisters believed that Jesus would start at once for Bethany, but he tarried, saying, "This sickness is not unto death (permanent death), but for the glory of God, that the Son of God may be glorified thereby." "When our sorrow seems greater than it need have been, and to be without meaning to us, let us wait until we see what He means by it and what He means to do for us through it" (Robert E. Speer). Jesus tarried where He was for two days. "The Divine Friend has not forgotten, though He leaves us for a while to bear the burden of trial and affliction unrelieved. He is no more really silent and passively indifferent to-day than He was on the day when He let Martha and Mary wait before coming to their aid. He knew all about it, followed the whole course of events as though he were on the spot, as He really was in spirit; and He came when they were ready for the truth their sorrow had to teach. It was the truth that nothing really matters except to live in Him" (Campbell).

Christopher Columbus, it seems, was married twice. But proof of his courage has already been shown in another instance.

Success With Alfalfa

By Jas. D. McGregor, Glencarnock
Stock Farms, Brandon, Man.

(Part 1)

Only by the diversification of farm crops can the farmer in any section protect himself against the conditions that continually and inevitably arise.

We find that the successful, the practical, the experienced alike recognize that highly profitable farming can only be attained by reducing the uncertainties to a minimum.

Notwithstanding this, any farm, no matter the size, where stock either of necessity or profit is to be fed, must, to facilitate an economical supply of feed, cultivate the crops that give greatest returns, and to alfalfa and sweet clover is the honor due.

Alfalfa seems to travel hand in hand with a spirit of optimism. It is the spirit which pervades wherever alfalfa is used. In no crop are the possibilities so apparent, and the results so noticeable to the farmer as alfalfa.

My first experience in the growing of alfalfa was in 1907. At that time I was ranching in Alberta and had broken up a small field which was used for a garden. I had been reading about alfalfa, became very much interested and planted this small field to Turkestan alfalfa. I got a splendid catch and it yielded a real good crop for two years and then winter-killed. About that time I first heard of Grimm's alfalfa seed and the experiments which were being made by Professor Hansen at Brookings, S. Dak.

Two young men had been assisting him in his experiments and they started an alfalfa field, growing seed from selected plants. Quite by accident I heard of these young men and went to see them, and the result was I purchased a quantity of seed from them. Enough to sow fifty acres in rows three feet apart. This seed was sown in a very dry part of Alberta, between Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, and we sowed all this particular seed with small hand garden drills and kept it clean by hand-hoeing and cultivating. The second year I harvested about 24,000 pounds of clean seed and this was distributed throughout Alberta. I also brought a quantity of it to Brandon, and sowed it on my farms there.

This seed was probably the parent seed of a good deal of the alfalfa which is being grown in Alberta today. The fields in Brandon which were sown with this seed turned out very successfully. Some of these fields are still producing alfalfa from this first sowing, but the most of this original sowing has been plowed up now on account of quack and other grasses getting into them. One field which we have today is about fifteen years old and up until last year has produced a very good tonnage each year.

We always produce considerable seed off our alfalfa fields each year and some of this seed on our Glencarnock farms in Manitoba I have taken back again to Alberta and sown there on our irrigated farm, with splendid results.

We are never bothered with winter killing which seems to be the greatest difficulty with alfalfa in Western Canada, but, of course, our fields have all been planted with seed which is a direct result of my first importation mentioned above.

Synthetic Insulin

Discovers Method Making Possible
Synthetic Production of Insulin

A method by which the active element can be obtained from insulin, the anti-diabetes serum, making possible its production by synthetic processes, has been discovered by Dr. Arthur Locke, research chemist of the St. Luke's Hospital at Chicago.

The discovery was announced by Dr. Locke, along with a similar discovery for obtaining the active element from diphtheria anti-toxin. The discoveries, which are expected to revolutionize certain medical practices, were made after months of intensive research by Dr. Locke and Dr. Edwin F. Hirsch, also of the St. Luke's Hospital.

On account of the exceedingly active opposition that we are receiving from the Board companies and on account of so many false and misleading statements made about our Company I want to let you know the result of our very heavy assessment as we have found it up to the present date.

In discussing the assessment of 33 1-3% of the note I want our members to realize that the cost of insurance with us for the past three years has only been $1.51 2-3 per hundred dollars on any ordinary farm risk. Those of your neighbors who insured three years ago in a Board company paid $2.00 per hundred for the same protection, as the reduction in their rate to $1.50 did not come into effect till the spring of 1922.

In the last issue of the Board Companies pamphlet "Insurance" they stated that we had advised our policy holders that "Our Assessment will in future be 33 1-3% per annum," an absolutely untrue and I believe an intentionally untrue statement, as we have every reason to believe we will be able to carry on with a much lower assessment in future.

In making our assessment our Directors did so anticipating the possibility of a smaller percentage of collections and a continuation or an increase in our losses during the threshing season. On both of these counts our fears have been groundless. Not only have our collections exceeded our expectations but for the past two months our losses have been about half what they were for the same period earlier in the year and so far from being bankrupt we find ourselves more than $100,000.00 better off this year on December 1st than on the same date in 1923 and this in spite of the fact that we have already paid more than $120,000.00 in losses over our total for 1923, and if our present loss ratio continues no heavy assessment will be needed. With a total assessment levy of less than $750,000.00 we have received within seventy days of sending out our notices over $500,000.00 in cash. Those who are disposed to cavil at the security which we hold in farmers' notes can ponder over this.

Remember that no Board Company gives as broad a covering as we do. All the advantages they are now offering through their agents as special attractions and only to be obtained from them are in our policy.

We insure up to 75% of the actual cash value and pay losses on the same basis—partial losses on buildings are paid for in full—draught animals are paid for anywhere while doing farm work, all household contents are covered under one item except musical instruments, which are insured separately, stacks of grain are insured within seventy-five feet of buildings, automobiles and tractors are insured while stored without extra charge. All these are part of our regular policy and in addition we allow free permits for gasoline lamps and stoves for which the Board makes a special charge. We also give free prairie fire protection in Manitoba and half the Board charge in the other provinces.

Remember also that no protection is given you by the Stock Companies until you have paid the full premium in advance, while we give immediate protection for an average period of seven months before asking for payment and then in the Fall and only one-third each year.

No risk is incurred by any member of a Mutual Company beyond the amount of the premium note, and for those who prefer to pay in advance our cash rate is only $1.25 with the same reduction as given by Board Companies for buildings having lightning rods and for dwellings having all chimneys from the foundation. Those who insure on the cash basis are of course free from any further payments during the life of the Policy.

Schools and churches can and should be insured in Mutual Companies for there is no legal or moral reason why they should not be notwithstanding the oft quoted opinion of some attorney from Texas whose view has for some years been a part of the Board propaganda and which has no more bearing on Canadian insurance than the views of an attorney in Reno, Nevada, would have on our Divorce Law.

See our agent or write to Head Office for further information. Yours sincerely,
